'Taboo' takes on the challenge of breaking taboos about people we are not supposed to laugh at, like the physically disabled, the blind or the terminally ill. In each episode, the presenter invites four people with the same vulnerability to a holiday home to live together for a week, where there's enough time to do activities and also get to know each other in great depth. Afterwards, in a theatre with the four protagonists in the audience, he performs a monologue about everything they've lived through and learned together. It's an original Belgian format distributed by Lineup Industries becoming the most successful premier of an entertainment on the channel.
